

Pre-conference «warm up» workshop 2

Workshop Leader	Prof. Kate Lorig, PhD, Stanford Patient Education Centre, USA
Date	17.03.2014, 08:00 - 10.00 Uhr
Location	Congress Centre Basel
Limited to	25 participants
Language	EN (no translation)
Title	Using the Internet for Patient Self-Management Programs, Self-Management Training and Teaching Professional Self-Management Support

Summary

The Internet has its advantages and disadvantages. In this workshop, we will discuss Stanford's experiences in creating, disseminating, and evaluating three types of online programs: 1) self-management for patients 2) training for Stanford program leaders and master trainers, and 3) workshops to give clinicians basic self-management skills.

Proposed Agenda

Time	Content
08:00-09:15	Introduction (presented by Kate Lorig): Using online approaches to train patients, leaders and health professionals in self-management and self-management support
09:15-09:30	Hands-on session: Breaking into teams, identifying advantages and challenges in online training and translating them to practice.
09:30-09:50	Group feedback and discussion
at 10:00	End of workshop
at 10:30	Opening of Careum Congress 2014 / 2 nd ENOPE conference

Who should attend?

Health professionals, stakeholders, decision-makers, or researchers currently implementing or interested in online training programs for health professionals.

Prerequisite Knowledge

None, though a background and some interest in Web 2.0, chronic illness, patient education and self-management support would be useful.

If you participate in this workshop, you can expect to:

- Learn about challenges and potentials of online training programs for health professionals
- Discuss how online programs can be evaluated
- Consider the impact of online training programs on care delivery and self-management support
- Discuss future activities for online training programs and implications for research and practice

Price

CHF 50

Key characteristics of «warm up» workshop

- The «warm up» workshops will provide a collaborative, active learning environment for the attendees of the Careum Congress 2014 / 2nd ENOPE conference. They will leave with skills, knowledge, or materials that they can use in their own practice or scholarship of training health professionals for self-management support.
- Workshop leaders will provide a background on the topic as well as an introduction and support an interactive dialogue in the workshop rather than a formal paper.
- Attendees of pre-conference «warm up» workshops must register for and attend at least one day of the conference. They also must pre-register for the workshops. A fee will be charged to cover expenses.
- Number of attendees per «warm up» workshops will be limited to facilitate an interactive dialogue amongst the participants.